Preface

In the years after his school days, one wishes to have somebody or something to remind him of his school life. In the hope of providing that rejuvenator and also to give to the general public a means of knowing what our school is accomplishing in the education of mind and body, we present to you "The Delphian" of nineteen hundred and eighteen.

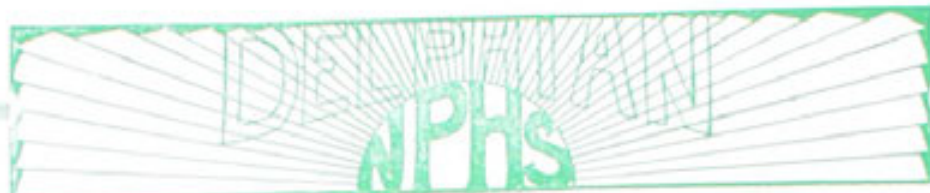

CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL

As a means of showing our appreciation and gratitude to one who constantly befriends and helps the students we dedicate "The Delphian" of this year to

The one phase of our school life which has probably been affected most by the war is the publication of our annual. The material and labor, expended on the book, has advanced beyond our expectations but since "The Delphian" has come to be considered a permanent publication, we did not feel justified in discontinuing it this year. So, through the efforts of our managers and the help of the student body, it has been possible for us to keep within the pace of our predecessors.

If, on turning through these pages, you should find defects or something that does not satisfy you tell your trouble to some member of the staff and not to some other person who does not know the difficulties in publishing a book of this description. We realize that other people will see our mistakes sooner than we will, therefore we will welcome good criticisms.

The Editor

Board of Education

ELLIOTT D. MOORE, President

Physician and Surgeon

Serving since Jan. 7, 1918

The New Philadelphia School Board is made up of good and loyal citizens who want young men and women to come out of our school, able and willing to bear the burdens of the future in both private and public life. Knowing that the board co constantly thinks of their welfare, in considering and deciding upon questions pertaining to the school work, the students accept and cooperate with their decisions cheerfully.

One new feature, added by the board to the school life and proving to be helpful and satisfactory to the students in general, is supervised study. The board has also made it possible for us to learn the language of one of our allies, by adding a two year course in French to our curriculum.

Senior Class History

"Lives of great men all remind us,
We can make our lives sublime,
And departing leave behind us
Foot-prints on the sands of time."

We the class of '18 are departing, but are leaving behind us many foot-prints on the sands of time. Many of these foot-prints will doubtless be washed away by the flood of other classes, but some will remain.

Our class entered Phila High in the fall of 1914. We were eighty-six strong, banded together "to do or die." Four years we have struggled and at last are ready to leave the halls of our dear old Phila High School. A number have left us, during the four years, for matrimony and for various other reasons. Several have joined our ranks until now we are sixty-four.

Our class has always stood very high in our studies. The first year the teachers recognized our abilities and have ever since been experimenting on us. We first accomplished more in our studies than any other class; the text books were changed; a new form of studying Senior English was introduced; and last but not least we have tried supervised study.

In Athletics our class was always to do its bit. Our boys soon joined the football quad. This year the team, the best that Phila ever had, was formed mainly of Senior boys. This team, which never knew defeat, won the championship of the northeastern section. Not only in football did our boys take their place, but also in every other form of athletics.

Moreover we have enjoyed the social side of high school. In the first year came the Junior-Freshman reception. When we were Sophomores all our parties were for ourselves. The third year we entertained the Seniors and also the Freshmen. Miss Krohn and Miss Patterson entertained the Seniors and Juniors. As Seniors, we have had many happy times: the wiener-roast October 18th; a masquerade ball November 2d; Sophomore-Senior reception, March 16th; Senior banquet, April 6th, and the Junior-Senior reception May 3d.

The class of eighteen is not only going to look out for itself, but it is going to help Uncle Sam win this war. Many of the members have purchased liberty bonds and thrift stamps. The girls have joined the Patriotic League. They have accomplished much this year, but hope to do more. The boys have contributed to the Y. M. C. A. The girls are going to have plain and in-expensive dresses for graduation in order to buy more thrift stamps. We are ready to help our country in every way we can.

These are the foot-prints which we leave in Phila High, but in the future may those of the class of '18 be:

"Foot-prints that perhaps another
Sailing o'er life's solemn main,
A forlorn and ship-wrecked brother
Seeing, may take heart again."

A. S. '18

Class Poem

Four years of preparation,
We've spent in Phila Hi
And not without enjoyment
Have all these years passed by,
But coupled with our pleasures,
We've labored to prepare
To meet the sterner duties
Our lives will have to share.

When Freshmen we were taunted,
As Freshmen always are,
But then we soon took courage,
And flung our fears afar,
As Sophomores we struggled
With lessons long and hard,
Our onward march as Juniors
E'en war could not retard.

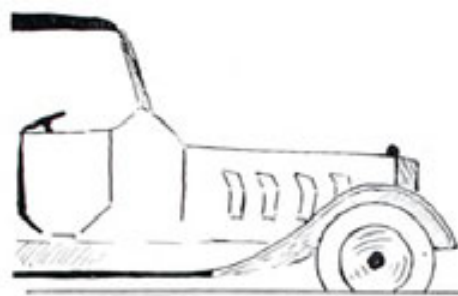

And then when we were Seniors
They tried the newest style,
Of teachers standing o'er us
And watching all the while,
But through it all we clambered
The wiser and the more
Prepared to take our places,
At life's unruly oar.

We deeply feel our sorrow,
At leaving school's best days
And praise our teachers efforts
To mend our erring ways,
We hope to put to practice
As days of life shall pass,
What we have learned by training
In the 1918 class.

Junior Class History

It is with some regret that we see the third year of our high school career draw to a close. We have but one more year in dear old Phila High and for the most of us it will pass all too quickly.

Much to our disappointment the enrollment of our class has greatly decreased. At the beginning of the year our enrollment was much less than the previous year and it seems during the school term the Junior class has lost more of its members than any other class. One of our members decided to sail the sea of Matrimony. At present we have about seventy members.

Our class still holds its own in Athletics. We had several "stars" on the foot-ball team this year and four of our men were on the Basketball team. The inter-class basketball games were played this year before the regular Basketball season opened and varsity men were permitted to play on the class teams. The Juniors won out in the final clash with the Seniors.

Many social events have made this an interesting year. One of the first was a trip to Loomis's summer home on the plains for a taffy pull given by Mr. Heintzelman. As is the custom of the Junior class we welcomed the Freshmen into the school by an informal reception given at Hallow-e'en time. The biggest event of our social year will be the Junior-Senior banquet. Preparations are now under way for this event.

In the Junior class the sale of thrift stamps has been carried on with a vim because we are trying to have a hundred per cent purchase of stamps.

A Patriotic League was organized in the Junior Class under the supervision of Miss Stockwell. In the future one night a week will be spent in working in the surgical-dressings room of the Red Cross.

Last but not least are our studies. Our forts have been stormed by the heavy artillery of Solid Geometry and Physics but they have been conquered with a real American spirit.

All this together with trying "to do our bit" has made this a busy but happy year.

Sophomore Class History

On September 14, 1917 three hundred and forty-two brave soldiers entered the High School training camp for the great battle of life. Ninety-three of these brave soldiers entered the Sophomore division under the command of Captain Wilson.

The first few days were spent in learning the duties of the soldiers life.

After the routine of duties was thoroughly learned, these ninety-three brave soldiers started in with a will, determined to win out.

A few of the boys made a place on the football team, which was classed as the champion foot-ball team of this state. Others won honors on the basket-ball team. The girls also did their part in the Glee Club and the Patriotic League.

At Christmas a furlough of one week and two days was granted, which the Sophomores enjoyed to the utmost.

On January 21, 1918 a week of examinations began which determined whether all of these ninety-three soldiers of the Blue and White would march onward to greater victories. Alas, all did not pass the examinations and some were left behind while their brave comrades marched on.

A few of the soldiers left the training camp because they were not qualified for the work either physically or otherwise. Still others were added to the regiment, brave soldiers from other camps.

But you must not think it was hard work in the camp. The soldiers enjoyed many pleasant times. On March 16, 1918 the Sophomore regiment royally entertained the Senior regiment in the camp Auditorium.

Now, the end of the year has come, and this year's training is also over-gone-never to come back. Some of these brave soldiers have received great honors for their good work; but there are others who have failed. Will these also someday lose out in the great battle of life. How wonderful it would be, if the Sophomore regiment of ninety-three brave soldiers could always march onward together, even unto the end, with their royal emblem, the Blue and the White, floating above them.

Freshman Class History

We have said farewell to our dear old grade school days and have at last reached the goal towards which we have striven for the past eight years.

As we were walking down the hall, we heard someone say, "There's a Freshie, where did he come from?" We did not have time then to stop and explain so we will now try to tell you a few things about our journey here.

In the year 1909 the most of us started our school life. We felt very happy to think we were going to school and for several years we enjoyed the satisfaction of advancing one step higher.

But, when the sixth grade was reached we began to feel rather lonesome, and began to wonder who the other boys and girls were that we heard so much about. If I remember correctly, they were from West End, Front Street, Central, Southside and East End Buildings.

Finally our great curiosity got the better of us and we endeavored to reach the "Seventh Grade," which in the year 1915 was a meeting place for most of us. Here we enjoyed many fine times, but we are sorry to say a good many of our school chums left us.

At last the final meeting place for the seventh grade pupils from all over town was reached. This was the eighth grade and here we enjoyed the pleasures of a fine new school building. This year a number of our boys became interested in Athletics and many proved their ability in this line.

In the spring of 1917 we said farewell to our classmates and spent a happy summer with the thoughts of entering High School in the fall.

On September 6, 1917 we arrived one hundred strong in dear old N. P. H. S. Here we heard quite a bit of confusion every place we went. Not being able to account for this, we inquired, and found it was all on account of our being there. We wandered about the halls and library, as we seemed to be greatly entertaining the upperclass-men. In fact many of our boys thought that the Sophomores probably would like to see them without much hair, so they left most of it at home for a few weeks.

We soon found that the Sophomores, Juniors and Seniors were really trying to make High School a very pleasant place for us. In October the Juniors entertained us royally at a reception, and here many of us became better acquainted.

We have not proved ourselves of much value to the school this year, but we have secured a good start, and we hope to be of much service to her in the next three years we spend there, that when we leave we can feel proud to say that the "Class of 1921" has earned a place of honor.

Class Prophecy

As fate would have it now and then, I traveled o'er the world,
And into Greece my footsteps turned. The flags of peace unfurled
Were flying o'er every house to tell the end of strife,
And things were taking on a view of reconstructed life.
In Greece I saw so many things that sure would interest you,
But one thing in particular, no, no, it was no zoo;
It was the Delphian oracle where Delphi tells the tales
Of lives of people you have known, and seldom ever fails
To tell just what is really true about your friends and foes;
And so I asked her how it was, what deeds, or deep felt woes,
Had fallen my classmates; one and all since I had seen them last
In High School halls. Already twenty long sad years had passed.
Immediately she breathed the fumes that always work the charm,
And oh, such strange, queer mutterings, I feared she'd do me harm.
But priests stood by with tablets large and noted every word.
And I became so spellbound that I watched but never stirred.
At last the maiden fainted back, exhausted by her work,
And then the priests told what she said, translated by the clerk.
"The one lone Angel of your class was married soon and well
She lives now quite contentedly wi' a farmer in the dell.
Miss Aebersold a teacher was and is yet to this day,
She married once but a war was on and cruelly tore him 'way.
Miss Deessecker to college went and learned to sing a lot;
Miss Staley married soon and well and so did Martha Scott.
Ted Hanson is an engineer and helped when war was o'er
To rebuild Belgium making it as nice as e'er before.
Ed Preston, Hartman, Sherer, all three, had followed him in line;
But president Jay Ohliger was left at home to pine
At that old occupation of "Domestic Engineer,"
For which it takes some patience while the other fellows sneer.
Then Thelma Pyle and Marion Moore, the babies of the class,
A long time were before they fell, but when it came to pass
"There's no fool like an old fool," said the neighbors as they talked.
But Mary Meiser, Hilda Miller both have worked and walked
Away with all the honors of such good stenographers.
Miss Fackler and Miss Beaber both have turned biographers.
Two sisters Hazel Houk and Mildred took to raising mice,
And get for all their big white ones a really decent price.
Miss Souers is a lonely maid and dwells in spinsters halls,
With dogs and cats to play with her and guard her lest she falls.
Companions though she has enough; Miss Gowins, and Miss Baab,
With Wenger, Shaffer, Kinsey, Baker, all have found a job,
To keep each other happy and to rule the house and home,
Where such poor maids are taken when the can no longer roam.
Ed Stoller is a poet wise, of nature does he write;
While Muriel Yaberg reads it all to please great crowds of night.
Fat Burri is a jolly man who lives in peace and joy;

Rejoicing in a family of three girls and a boy,
While Spechty, disappointed by a sailor boy in love,
Has always earned her living better than some maids above.
And Margaret Beitler taught some girls to cook and sew just fine,
While Harriet Gatschett stays at home and nurses all the time
Her husband, who was hurt so bad while fighting for the free,
And Mildred Stucky helped in war by going 'cross the sea,
And using all her well trained skill to doctor boys who fell.
While fighting for Aemrica. Then Cordy Andrews sews so well,
That she and Beatriee Campbell, started out to sew for those,
In Wainwhight who desire to wear the best of pretty clothes.
Then Franklin R. did write a book on "Walking in Your Sleep,"
But Raymond Seibold reads it not, because it is too deep.
He's master of a dancing class. His fame is quite renowned;
And people come to get his aid from miles and miles around.
Now Schneider is a man of fame, who draws like Donahey;
But stays at home and helps to print the daily times each day.
The Misses Hauptert and Maholm bo'h clerk in Burri's store,
Where Helen Roser trims the hats, and Lindsay walks the floor.
Then Florence Bucey and Jean Dowling went across the sea,
To help to liven up our boys by serving toast and tea.
But Alma Reichman married soon and lives in peace content;
Lib Lahmer never married but her time is most all spent,
In buying all her wedding clothes which never will be used,
But Schweitzer is a happy maid who's never been abused,
By kith or kin but has her way as just what she will be.
A novelist is Mildred Waltz and loved by all is she.
Then I. LeMasters runs the train to Roswell every day;
Red White goes along and talks of Women Suffrage all the way,
And there's Paul Snyder who the teachers thought their pride and pest,
But now he's teaching Wordsworth, for his poems he likes best.
Perhaps the pair that caused the least surprise of all the class,
Was Garrett Sargent and the girl by far the loveliest lass,
Whoever went with him. So Erma Leggett claimed his name,
Before he had the chance to see the world and win his fame.
But Earl Shafer chose the path of Bachelor-hood for his;
And Henry Thomas followed with "It's best for me, it is."
But Emily Morgan won her fame by melodies so sweet;
And Delmer March has won his by an acrobatic feat.
Then Gladys Mizer, Isabelle Meek as usual have not shirked
Their duty but they went to France and there in canteens worked.
But stately Anna Swearingen has travelled here and there;
As yet she's found no husband 'though she's sought him everywhere.
Now Homer Stiffler runs a farm together with his wife,
Who does for him most all the work to keep them here in life.
Virginia Howard went to France, a well trained Red Cross nurse,
And Mary Spiker went along to drivee an ambulance hearse.
But Edward Torgler leads the life which envied by most men,
Is seldom ever led. But Edward has just one lone den,
Where day by day he eats and sleeps with only one thing bright,
Which is a little diamond ring, the cause of many a night

Of sleepless expectations, but its been returned by six,
Who thought it best not yete to find themselves in such a fix."
Thus Delphi's knowledge wide and sure
Was well revealed to me. There's nothing left for me to say
But "May you happy be."

A Physical Dream

"Inertia manifesting itself in this tendency of the parts of the rotating Systems to move away from the center of rotation is called centrifugal force."—"O dear, I'm sure I can't remember that till tomorrow! Why is there such a subject as physics? it's the most mixed up study you can find. Inertia manifesting—What's the use of studying? I'll not know anyway. There's no sense to this stuff at all. I'd so much rather read a good book, there the characters act and do interesting things. But how could momentum, and force, and motion ever do anything—I'm so sleepy, I'm almost dreaming. Oh!"

"Now if I were a Cartesian diver so that when pressure was applied to my head, I'd be able to dive and comprehend the fundamental unity of length, mass, and time, chase the molecules thru dew and fog; get them cornered in space and let me atom to find their temperature; get their humidity; now let me C. G. S. that Droppler's principle brought Ohm—caused Davy to invent the safety lamp.

"Then if I would be able to screw the pitch of the gear wheels in order to dissociate and amalgamate the expansion and compressibility of the air of my lungs, there would take place local action causing enough ventilation by transmission of force that the tubes of my anatomy would give enough amplitude and variation to the bellows of my internal resistance box, which would emit a train of waves of such magnitude that the molecules would be made to understand that its conductors connected in series by isogonic lines has given rise to artificial ice and cold storage in its helix.

"The circulation thru the gyroscope, brough about the sounding board beating a horse power, causing it to slide down an inclined plane, upset the equilibrium of its differential. When the right hand rule was applied to its resonator the bouyant force of the confined liquid did not conform to Boyle's law. Seeing that ascension or descension to some other place where the specific heat might be greater than the heat of fusion, and fearing that vaporization might exhaust the caloric in its terrestrial carcass, I decided to call for Leclanche Cell, a noted doctor.

"Stop cock!" said the doctoor. "What sensation of zero have we in this eccentric here? Shunt, transmit to me X-Ray, gas-meter, electro-scope, rectifier and cam, so that we can electroplate the perpetual motion and determine the artificial solution by mans of industrial appliances the condition of his pulse. Kilowatt! Your rate of acceleration is not proportional to the square root of the amplitude of the tenacity of your density, consequently scales have developed in the convex ions of your volt. This case sounds like the exhaust from the flywheel transmitted thru the threads of induction causing a deflection in the connection of your resonator. A couple of turbines will be necessary to compress the latent heat generated by a trolley wire to the sound foci. Bar magnets or the relay of the phonograph may cause a dip in the needle which might puncture the plates of your galvanic cell. The temperature of your circulation must be constant or the rate of velocity in your vacuum will centrifuge to the maximum." Graphically representing the result of such falling bodies, the doctor sounded a dissociation.

"The molecule by a method of nodes and anodes, echos and re-echos and sympathetic vibrations repelled the unhealthy elements from his internal existence and soon became a healthy solinoid. He was now able to eyne on electrid winds compressed by the voltmeter and transmitted by the governor thru the ariel to a couple of worm wheels sprinkled with currents. Consequently his rate of change of momentum takes place in the direction in which the force is applied and its centrifugal force."

"Why, I must have fallen asleep! I've had the queerest dream; all about terms in physics. I didn't think there were so many. There surely was action in that dream. The poor molecule had such a time but he recovered after all. Perhaps I had better study, I believe I could find something interesting in any law after that dream. Inertia manifesting——."

The Haunted House of High School Street

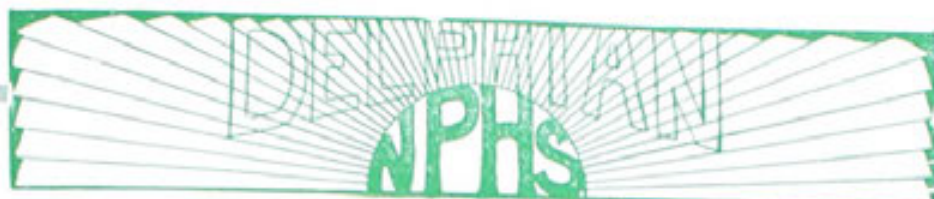

The doors opened and a crowd of high-school students poured out of the building, probably faster than they had entered with school books under their arms.

Four girls loitered a little behind the rest, talking idly of nothing-in-particular.

"Isn't that a ghostly-looking house?" remarked Fanny, a Sophomore who had not entirely out grown her "greenness." "I bet there's all kinds of ghosts in that house."

Jean, a more experienced Junior, replied with a jeer. "Oh, yes! Why, my dear child, 'patronizingly,' don't you know you shouldn't believe in ghosts? The idea! Because you've been reading Poe lately, you take delight in telling about the most uncanny things!"

"Well," said Fanny, "you know very well that I don't believe in them exactly, but I guess Poe's books are fine, and I like 'em uncanny and wierd! And, anyhow, that house is real old, about a hundred years, I think, and Grandma said they used to see the awfulest things around there!"

"Oh, tell us, do!" cried the other girls, now interested in spite of themselves.

"Yes," said Dorothy and Doris, who were twins, and Freshmen. "Our Grandma saw something there, too," and they nodded their heads mysteriously at each other.

"Go ahead and tell us, Fan, but you needn't expect me to believe it!" said the skeptical Jean.

"Well," began Fanny, "there isn't much to tell. Hm—m—" a pause—

"Go on," begged the girls who had stopped in front of the "ghostly-looking" house, and seated themselves on the grass at Fanny's feet.

"Well, it was this way; Grandma used to live right over there where that house now stands," (pointing to an adjacent house) "and every once in a while when she'd be looking out of the window at night, she'd see—" and Fanny paused dramatically.

"Please go on" chorused the girls again.

"She'd see the awfulest, wierd uncanny"—another pause in which the girls waited breathlessly—"lights!"

"Oh!" gasped the girls, not prepared for this.

"Yes, lights," repeated Fanny, vaguely. And they'd flicker around in the most frightful manner, and—but that isn't all either. She saw—she saw—a ghost!"

"Oo!" squealed the girls, delicious little thrills creeping up and down their spines, and as Jean afterward expressed it, "their hair really standing on end."

"And," continued Fanny, "it wasn't a sheet-ghost, either—it was the real thing. It wasn't clear white; it was sort of misty gray, an' its hands were icy-cold, an'—"

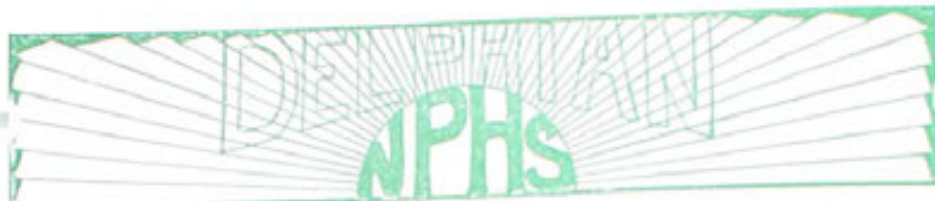

"Hmph!" interrupted Jean. "How do you know its hands were icy-cold—did you feel them?"

"I'm coming to that," replied Fanny calmly but haughtily, "but how can I tell you when you keep interrupting all the time? Of course, I didn't feel them; how could I when it happened when Grandma was a girl? Haven't you any sense? Well, Grandma didn't know its hands were cold at first—but when she saw it, she just made up her mind she'd find out if it was a ghost, or someone trying to frighten her. She got another girl to go with her, "at this Dorothy and Doris looked significantly at each other," and so they went over. Well, no-one lived there then, and the doors were all locked, but Grandma and this girl first opened the window and climbed right in! And they almost bumped into this ghost! An' it went "wosh!" (only it sounded more like a groan) an' it put its hand on Grandma's arm and she said it felt just like ice! And its eyes were like fire! Well, Grandma and this girl didn't wait to find out any more; they just tumbled out o' that window like a flash, an' ran home as fast as they could."

"Proceed," said Jean, as much as to say, "I don't believe a word of it; but I may as well hear it all!"

"That's all," said Fan, with some spirit, "and you needn't believe it if you don't want to; but all I say is you'd better go an' find out for yourself! 'N' what's more, I dare you to go! I dare you to!"

"But," said Doris, "you didn't tell us about the lights."

"So I didn't" said Fanny. "The lights were the spirits of the people that lived in the house and every night they'd roam about the old places they used to live in."

"Spirits fiddlesticks!" said Jean.

"I dare you to go: I double dare you to!" reiterated Fanny.

"Certainly, I'll go!" said Jean, "just to show you foolish children that there are no such things as ghosts! and I'll go this very night!"

"All right!" said the irrepressible Fan, "And if you show us that, we'll humbly beg your pardon!"

With this the girls departed and went to their respective homes.

Immediately after supper, Fanny climbed the attic stairs, and was soon heard rummaging in the trunks. In a short time she emerged, triumphant, with a gray carriage robe over one arm and some long white gloves on the other, and a gray mosquito net completely covering her. She entered her room and no more was heard from her except a muttered sentence, "I wish I could manage about the lights," at which her family marvelled.

About a half-hour after her supper, which was somewhat later than Fan's, Jean donned her hat and coat and told her mother she was going for a walk, which was quite true. She approached the neighborhood of the "haunted house" and fearlessly walked up the grass-grown path to the house itself which was of gray brick and which stood at some distance from the road, surrounded by tall trees. It was a very dark night, just the kind of night in fact when one is inclined to be superstitious and slightly nervous.

To her surprise, Jean found the door ajar. She entered, but saw nothing strange, as she had half expected to. "I may as well be thorough," thought she, and climbed the stairs, which creaked under her weight. She entered a room at her left and almost screamed aloud with terror as she saw the very creature-or-ghost which Fanny had so vividly described. It was extremely tall, and certainly was no sheet ghost, as Fanny had expressed it. It belonged to an entirely new family of ghosts, being neither white nor black, but a really "misty-gray." Its eyes gave forth a subdued glint like coals. Jean waited no longer. With a speed that would have done her credit in her "gym work" she bolted down the stairs, but not before she had felt the icy grip of the ghost. She hurried out of the door and home.

At her departure the "ghost" seemed to double up and out of the gray carriage robe and mosquito net, emerged a girl and a pair of stilts. She threw herself on the carriage robe and laughed till the tears ran down her cheeks.

"Oh-oh-oh!" cried Fanny, for she it was. "How lucky I was to get the stilts, and that phosphorus made my eye look fierce!" And, shouldering her burden, she went home. On the road she stopped suddenly, struck by a thought. "Oh, I know now, who the girl with Grandma was when she went there," she said, somewhat incoherently. "It was Dorothy and Doris's Grandma. But I didn't tell the girls all of it. I didn't tell them that the 'ghost' she saw was not a ghost, but only Grandpa playing a prank on her just as I played the same one on Jean. Oh-oh-oh!"

A Senior's Dream

One rainy night as I lay sleeping
Sleeping in my cozy bed,
Slowly a strange dream came creeping,
Creeping through my senseless head.
Once more I was a quaking freshman
In a dim forboding lore,
And I found myself ascending steps
A dozen score or more.

Finally with a thud I landed,
On a second shaking floor
Where gaping freshmen, fearful spectres,
Peered in every open door.
But at last they all must somewhere,
Settle for their future roll,
And I found myself established
Trembling, shaking, heart and soul.

Fancy quickly carried onward
And gay Christmas came anon,
To a new burnished building
E'er a few weeks we had gone.
Ah that tall and stately structure
Far surpassing all our dreams,
Seemed to us the height of pleasures,
Sending many golden dreams.

Here the hours flew by like lightning
Three years passed and almost four,
And I found myself departing
Through a friendly, swinging door.
With the friends who oft had left it
In the bright glad days of yore
As to meeting here in future
Came a sad voice "never more."

Tears were streaming from my lashes,
Soaking pillow, quilt and hair,
And I thought how oft I'd boasted
That to leave it, I'd not care.
Suffocated, almost roasted,
Moaning, groaning, I lay there
Then a rumble quickly reached me
Which seemed to me to rend the air.

With a start I quickly wakened,
Faced my bedrooms open door
And with nerves so greatly shaken
Heard a voice I'd heard before.
Rumbling, rising, loudly pealing,
Ending in a muffled roar
Through the air came slowly stealing,
"I will call you not once more."

The Unknown Knight

The people were thronging to the lists,
Eager to see the fray,
They came from far, they came from near
It was tournament day.

The most renowned of all the state,
Saxons and Normans were there
Prince John and all his retinue,
Rowena, with golden hair.

Prince John, he led her to her throne,
Queen of the day was she
Around her crowded ladies fair,
Praising her dignity.

The sun was shining fierce and bright
Upon the combat field;
The knights were ready for the fight,
Eager their swords to wield.

The marshals then all shouted, "Go"!
The courses had begun:
Each knight then rushed into the fray,
Bravely fought every one.

Some mounted knights, their lances lost
In the fury of the fray,
Were fighting fiercely with their swords,
The other side to stay.

Many had fallen in the strifes,
Their armour dark with dust
Those left fought on with feverish zeal,
For win or die they must.

At length the ranks more thin became,
Of all, but five were left
On one side did the unknown knight
Parry with Front-de-Boeuf.

Once when he was attacked by three
("Beware!" the audience cried)
The unknown knight reined back his steed,
Pursued by the other side.

The Black Knight to his rescue came
Like thunder from the sky.
"Desdichado to the rescue!"
The people heard him cry.

He struck the noble Front-de-Boeuf,
And rolled him to the ground;
Then made a blow at Athelstane,
Who fell upon a mound.

The sable knight rode from the lists
As calmly as could be,
Leaving the unknown knight to fight,
The strongest of the three.

The unknown knight now had to fight
Brian de Bois Guilbert
Brian, weary by loss of blood,
Had done much fighting there.

The unknown knight the victory won
Which angered young Prince John
Who cast his scepter to the ground
And declared the fray was done.

Rowena, the queen of beauty there,
The chaplet did bestow
Upon the victor of that fray,
Upon young Ivanhoe.

For when the helmet was removed
From his unwilling head,
She saw the face of one she loved,
One, whom she thought was dead.

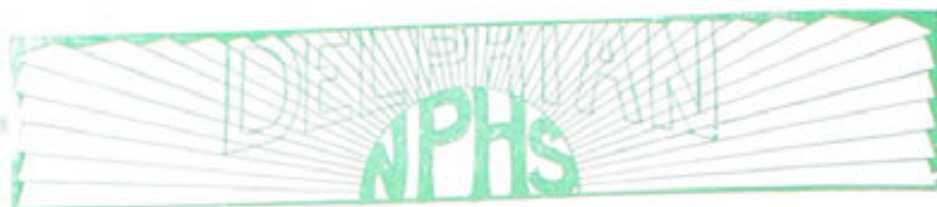

The Knight who stooped to kiss her hand
Fell prostrate at her feet;
Cedric the Saxon then rushed out
Eager his son to greet.

Quickly they carried him from the field
To a place of refuge went
For he had been wounded by a spear
By the strong Templar sent.

So this is the story of Ivanhoe
The knight of great renown
Who banished from his father's house
Did finally win a crown.

Recovered from his many wounds
He went forth to woo
Rowena with her golden hair,
And he succeeded too.

Literary Societies

Ten Literary Societies were organized in New Philadelphia High School in the fall of 1916. To one of these societies every pupil in the high school was assigned by a committee of teachers. Each society has its own group of officers, consisting of president, vice president, secretary, treasurer, two critics and a sargent-at-arms, together with one teacher who acts as supervisor. The election of officers takes place three times within a year. Meetings are held every two weeks, from October until May, on Friday afternoon from one to one fifty.

The purpose of the literary society is to train pupils to speak in public and to speak extemporaneously. It also, is to teach pupils how to conduct meetings, how to keep a secretary's book and to accustom them to parliamentary law. For each performance at the meetings pupils are given a certain number of points. The Seniors and Juniors must have ten points; Sophomores, eight points; and Freshmen, six points by the end of the year. Each person must have his required number of points or he does not receive his credit in English.

On the programs this year dramatic work has received more emphasis than last year. Short plays dialogues, and monologues have been very popular. The Athenaeon and Criterion Societies gave very successfully the play, "The Teeth of a Gift Horse," by Margaret Cameron. The Victorian Society gave a new patriotic play entitled, "The Girls Over There," and also gave one of William Dean Howell's farces "The Mouse Trap." "Old Peabody Pew," by Kate Douglas Wiggin, was given very satisfactorily by the Philomathean Society. A number of short scenes, dialogues, and monologues were given by other literary societies. In order to obtain dramatic material each literary society contributed fifty-cents to buy a drama library.

Special programs were held on several occasions. On Washington's birthday each society prepared a patriotic program. Athenaeon, Shakespearean, and Philomathean Societies have had bird programs at which they used the lantern to illustrate their talks.

In January an open meeting was held to which all parents and friends were invited. Each society contributed one number of the program.

One of the most note-worthy things done by any literary society this year was the purchasing of material and the making of a Service Flag containing forty-three stars, by the Delphian Society. This was presented to the high school in the form of a pantomime at the Slide Course program on December 14, 1917.

The work of the literary societies this year has showed a marked improvement over last year. The work has been enjoyed by all and great benefit has been derived. Next year they promise to do more than in previous years.

M u s i c

The Music Department of our High School has seen two supervisors during this school year. Shortly before Christmas, Professor F. R. Speck responded to the call to our colors and went to Camp Sherman to help the Y. M. C. A. in their great work of sending a "singing army" into France. We all felt sorry to see Professor Speck leave, but were proud of his willingness to lend his aid to the great strife. For several weeks after his departure we were without a supervisor until Professor H. L. Bland of Shelbyville, Indiana, came. Professor Bland has a fine musical education and has proved all that has been expected of him. For ten years he has conducted Chautauqua Concerts during the summer and is indeed well fitted to direct a body of young people in their singing.

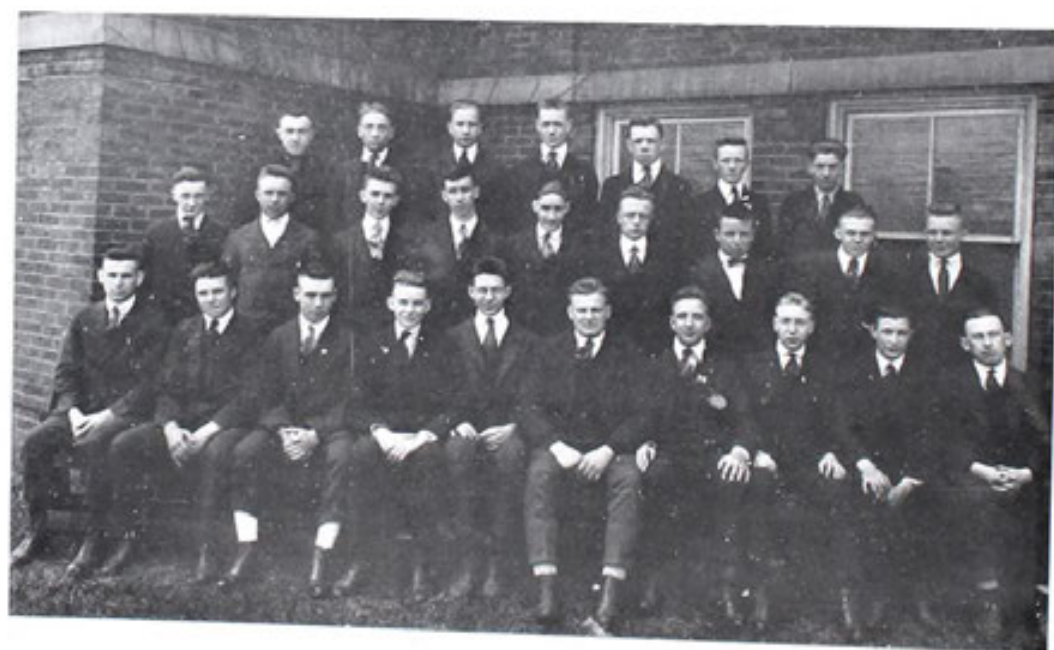

Owing to this change in the supervision of our music the "Messiah" which is given annually by the High School had to be omitted. Professor Speck wanted also to produce some kind of musical drama before the school closed, but this could not be carried out.

The coming years are promising for the Music Department. As soon as Professor Bland learns to know the talent in our school he will produce with it many entertainments we are sure; for his ability in that line is unlimited.

In spite of difficulties, our school has produced an excellent orchestra, and two glee clubs, to say nothing of its famous girl's quartette.

And after the game you'll cry,
'Lest old acquaintance be forgot
Bet your cash on New Phila Hi."

Chorus

"Oh! oh! oh! Chew'em, Chaw'em,
kick'em and claw'em,
This team here has no fear and after the ceremony,
We'll win out on bucks and end runs,
We'll play football for Philly Hi."

"PHILLY WILL SHINE"

"Philly will shine to-night,
Philly will shine;
Philly will shine to-night,
Philly will shine;
Philly will shine to-night,
Philly will shine;
When the sun goes down
And the moon comes up,
Philly will shine;
1-2-3-4
3-1-2-4
Who for? What for?
Who you going to yell for?
N-E-W-P-H-I-L-A.
That's the way you spell it,
Here's the way you yell it.
Rah! Rah! Philly.

"PHILLIGAN"

Tune: "Harrigan"

"When the ball begins to play,
All will yell for Philly Hi.
For we've got the team that's always in the game,
On our field or away from home
it's all the same.
We've got the team that always knows
The game from A to Z
It's a cinch in a pinch that our boys
will never flinch,
For we've got the stuff you see."

"SALUTE OUR COLORS"

Tune:—"Salute Our Colors"

"Salute our colors, the red and black,
Emblem of victory, on every track-
We'll put that pigskin over the line,
Here's for a hundred,
Shine Philly Shine."

Mush and milk and cinnamon seed,
That's the stuff on which we feed.
Wild and wooly and full of fleas
Never been curried below the knees.
First in war, first in peace,
First in the hands of the Chief of Police.
Bah! Sis! Boom! Coo! Coo!

The Patriotic Leagues were organized in our High School by Miss Schauffler for the purpose of getting the girls interested in War work. Each class was organized with the following leaders: Senior—Miss Schauffler, Junior—Miss Stockwell, Sophomore—Miss Hostick, Freshman—Miss Tenner, and Eighth Grade—Miss Link. At the Rally, it was reported that one hundred and eleven High School and fifty-four eighth grade girls have joined the League and have been doing various works of value such as, sewing carpet rags, knitting comforts, making scrap books, baby layettes, and helping in the local Red Cross rooms.

When Uncle Sam called for men to make our country safe for Democracy, it was necessary that they be provided with suitable places for recreation. In order to help the Y. M. C. A. in the work, the people were asked to donate money. Everyone responded cheerfully, especially the boys of the High School who enthusiastically agreed to do their share. Ten captains were chosen whose duty it was to personally ask the boys of the school to give, before the first of April, ten dollars which they had earned themselves. The eighty-two who promised to pay the ten dollars showed that the students were eager to do their bit for the soldiers.

The High School now has a service flag of fifty-one stars of which we are very proud. We also have a framed chart of the names of the boys who have joined the colors. These were purchased and presented by the Adelpian Society. The Shakespearean Literary Society purchased and presented an American Flag to the school. These, however, are only small things that we can do to show our appreciation of the boys who have gone to the Army. In order to show their patriotism and help win the war, the students are purchasing Thrift Stamps and Liberty Bonds. A record is taken every week of the number of Thrift Stamps purchased. Thus we are trying to show our loyalty and patriotism to the boys who have gone forth to give their lives for their country.

We take pride in announcing that, at the last Thrift Stamp report, every student in the High School had purchased at least one Stamp

COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENT

The Commercial Department of our school, under the guiding hand of Mr. Sloe, has been sending out into the business world, young men and women, who are capable of showing the mettle of this department.

The first year the Commercial course is taken up with the study of Commercial Geography and Commercial Arithmetic. This Arithmetic prepares the student for the second year's work.

The entire second year is devoted to bookkeeping alternated with lessons in penmanship and spelling.

A higher study of bookkeeping is given to the students the first semester of the third year in the form of "Modern Corporation Accounting." Commercial law is studied the second semester. In this year Stenography and Typewriting are also started.

Stenography and Typewriting are strenuously emphasized the last year of the commercial course.

The department conducts an employment bureau which gives every inquiry personal consideration as well as strict confidence, and which keeps in mind the worthiness and superiority of its pupils when making recommendations. The bureau has this motto:—"To do all the good we can, to as many as we can, to make it last as long as we can and to make it as effective as we can."

Any department of our high school with an enrollment as large as the commercial department has each year, is one not to be lost sight of. The enrollment of this department at the beginning of the year was over two hundred.

Miss Hosick teaches the Freshmen and Mr. Sloe the upper classes.

Domestic Science Department

Cooking Class

The domestic science department is growing more popular every year. The benefits received from the course this year were greater than ever before. The Junior girl's class served lunches every noon so that the pupils carrying their dinners could have something hot to eat. This work gave us splendid practice and at the same time made a small profit, which will be used to purchase new equipment for the kitchen.

The High School was provided with a dining room this year. The purpose of this was to teach the girls the care of a dining room, the duties of a waitress and the service of a table. The result of this practice was shown by the way the banquets were served.

We learn more in domestic science than the preparation of foods. We are taught the fuel value of foods, the daily food requirement of persons doing different kinds of work, the best foods to pack in a luncheon, the preparation of foods for the sick, the care of our utensils and many other valuable lessons.

Our class and the Freshman class, which is larger than ever before, feel that we are greatly indebted to Miss Perry for her untiring efforts and for the practical education she is giving us. In return for this, we are trying our best and we hope, some day, to show the world the result of the training we have received.

C. R. '91

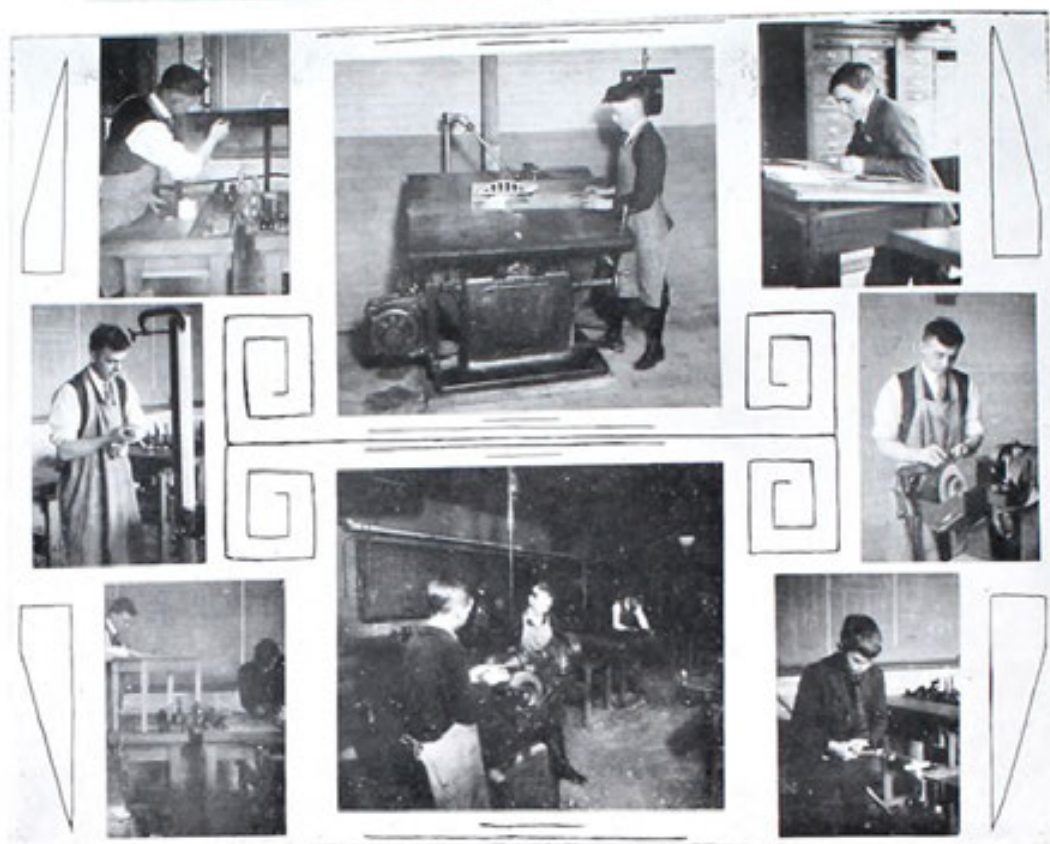

Sewing Class

Our Sewing Class consists of eight girls, six of whom are Sophomores and two Seniors.

Our work the first semester was the making of garments for ourselves. At the beginning of the second semester, we were given permission to make layettes for the Belgian babies. This has been very interesting work, because we feel that we have done our bit toward helping the sufferings of our brave and true Allies.

We wish to thank our teacher, Miss Perry for the opportunity she has given us to take part in this great work.

MANUAL TRAINING DEPARTMENT

The Manual Training Department, the smallest division of the Industrial Arts Course, is yet in its infancy with a broad field upon which to expand. This may be due in part to the fact that colleges and universities do not accept high school credits from this department for college entrance.

This equipment is yet inadequate as compared with this department in other leading schools. However we are very thankful for what we have, and especially for the power grinder and universal saw recently installed. If the present effort to secure federal aid through the Smith-Hughes Law materializes, much assistance may be obtained.

The department now takes care of the sixth, seventh, eighth grades and the boys taking the Industrial Course in the High School. This totals about two hundred and eighty boys. This necessitates an overlapping of classes due to the fact that they come from various buildings during the day. This congestion can be overcome either by eliminating the sixth grade or employing an assistant. As a whole, the work accomplished has been very satisfactory. A number of pieces of furniture have been constructed of which the boys will always be proud. Bird house building received quite a stimulus when several citizens of the town, banks, and the Audubon Society, offered cash prizes and material with which to make the houses.

"Vocational training of the best and most scientific kind has come to stay. No course should be so narrow in aim and scope as to cheat the pupil out of his heritage of race culture and to prevent the making of a living from contributing to the making of a life."

Social Affairs

The first social event of the school year of '17-'18 was the marsh-mallow toast held by the Seniors in the Band room of N. P. H. S. on October 18.

On Friday, October 19, the Juniors boarded a south-bound car and were carried to an unknown destination which proved to be the Loomis' summer home on the Plains. The evening was spent in front of an open fire, telling ghost stories and making taffy.

The Moose Club was the scene of a Hallowe'en Party given by the Seniors. Many weird and mysterious personages appeared and the evening was spent in the usual Hallowe'en revelry.

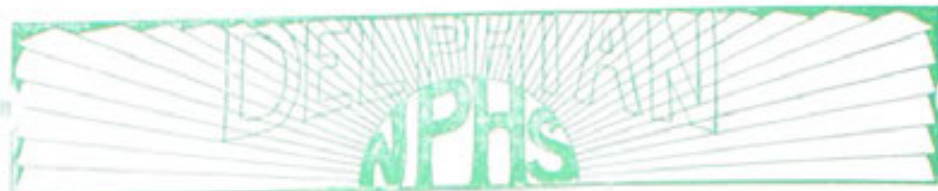

The Juniors welcomed the Freshmen into N. P. H. S. on Friday, November 2. The Auditorium was beautifully decorated and an interesting program was given by the Juniors.

The undefeated football team of 1917 was entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Warner at a dinner. The dinner was followed by High School songs and yells.

On December 7, the football team was again royally entertained. This time at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Horger.

After the Junior-Senior basket-ball game the Senior girls entertained the defeated Senior boys with a lunch which consisted of sandwiches, pickles, apples and coffee.

On the evening of February 7, the Athletic Association of N. P. H. S. gave a banquet in honor of the athletes of the school. Coach Boles of Wooster was the honor guest of the evening.

On March 16, the Sophomores entertained the Seniors at a party. The auditorium was beautifully decorated with the national colors. The entertainment of the evening was a play, "The Triumph of Pauline," given by the Sophomores.

Following the custom of former years the Seniors held a banquet on April 6, at the K. of P. Hall. After the banquet, toasts were given by members of the Senior Class and all of the teachers.

At the regular monthly meeting of the faculty, October 30, a dinner was served by the girls in the advanced Domestic Science Class. The speaker of the evening was Supt. Stanton of Alliance.

The New Philadelphia public schools observed a patriotic week beginning February 18. At the close of the week a community song service was held in the High School auditorium. The purpose of this was to arouse a feeling of patriotism in the community.

In order to raise funds for the Annual and to give a donation to the Red Cross the Seniors held an Indoor Carnival in the High School Auditorium.

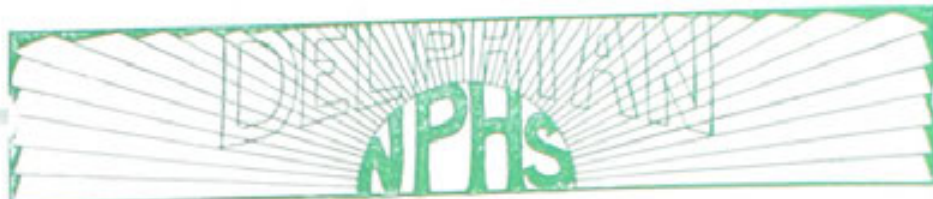

Not much is known about the Junior-Senior reception which will be given May 3, but it is promised that it will be a great social event and that everyone will have a good time.

"A moment yet the actor stops,
The play is done, the curtain drops

And looks around to say farewell"

SENIOR SLIDE COURSE

The success of the first number of the course, an "Artists' Concert," given Oct. 26, was far beyond expectations. This feature proved so popular that another concert of a similar nature followed on Nov. 16. The programs of these concerts consisted of readings and music. Those who took part are to be complimented on their musical as well as histrionic ability.

Patriotism and loyalty to our country is strong in New Philadelphia High School. This patriotism manifested itself Dec. 14 in a two act playlet entitled "Somewhere in France." It was given for the benefit of the Red Cross. Those taking part were:—Anna Swearingen, Marion Moore, Catherine Welch, Anna Steen, Russel Mathias, Paul Snyder and Garratt Sargent. Before and after the play patriotic songs were sung. Ida Dessecker sang "America," Emily Morgan, "The Marsellaise Hymn" and Mrs. Norman Parr, the "Star Spangled Banner." Each of these songs was illustrated by beautiful and appropriate slides. Last but far from least was a pantomime enacted by Margaret Page, Magdaline Baab, Russell Knisely and Hugh Rangelier in which a service flag containing fifty-one stars was presented to the school; each star representing a graduate of N. P. H. S. now in the U. S. Army or Navy. Thanks for this flag is due the Adelphian Literary Society under the captaincy of Mr. Ritter. We are all certainly very proud of the flag and the men whom its stars represent.

Music was furnished by the Senior Chorus.

A delightful feature of this Slide Course was the concert, April 16, 1918, given by the Murray Trio,—Eldon, Charles and Paul Murray, and Miss Georgia Hill of Dover, Ohio. This concert was thoroughly appreciated by every one as these young musicians were up to their usual high standard of excellence.

WOOSTER GLEE CLUB

The Wooster College Glee Club, here Jan. 3, proved to be up to the standards of Wooster college for "pep" and originality. Their program was pronounced "great" by all who attended. A large audience showed their appreciation by rounds of applause; the faculty theirs, by a reception, given in honor of the members of the glee club. The proceeds from this entertainment went to the Annual fund.

CLASS PLAY

Many are looking forward to the treat in store for them, May 22. This is the eventful day of the class play. "The Superior Miss Pellen-der," written by Sydney Bowkett. There are no doubts as to its success.

Letter Men

Capt. Edwin Stoller—L. T.—'18

"Gussy" was a hard and fierce tackler and saved many a touchdown for his team. He was there on both offense and defense. If a few yards were needed—give it to Gussy. He was as good a captain as player.

Oscar Limbach—L. G.—'19

"Oscar" comes from Stonecreek where they have good things to eat. Consequently he is the biggest man on the squad. He is very strong on defense and is even known to have blocked a punt with his nose in the Massillon game.

Russell Mathias—Center—'18

"Russ" is one of the best centers in the state. He is little but mighty. When a few yards were needed he would make the hole and Hube would carry the ball. His smashing tactics on defense will be missed next year.

Alfred Burri—R. G.—'18

"Fat" is the big man on the right side of the line, and he always holds it intact. This made possible our long punts and clean passes. It is said, that he scares out his man with his fierce looks.

Frank Freeman—R. T.—'19

"Hank" is a Midvale product, but a great tackle even though he did come from a small town. His work in the Akron game will not be forgotten. He should be a star lineman next year.

John Horger—R. E.—'21

"Nip" is not very large in stature, but mighty on offense and defense. He has several more years and with this added experience should prove a very valuable end.

John Harris, Capt. Elect.,—Quarterback—'19

"Hube" is a ten second man and a quarterback of exceptional judgment. In carrying the ball, smashing a play, heaving a pass, or tackling a runner, he is second to none. He will make a great captain for next year.

Clyde Hartman—L. H.—'18

"Husky" is one of the main ground gainers. He sure can hit the line hard—if you doubt it ask Dover about the Thanksgiving game. His good work will be missed next year.

Carl Warner—Full Back—'19

"Carly" as he is known to the fellows, is a strong defensive as well as offensive player. What he lacks in weight as a fullback, he makes up in aggressiveness.

Earl Gross—L. E.—'19

"Monk" played at end and stopped many a play. His work on offense is just as fine. Many a yard has been added and touchdowns scored due to his passes and lengthy punts.

Henry Haason—R. H. '18

"Hansy" is the man from "God's Country." This was his first year at football, but that was not his fault. He was good on offense as well as defense.

Chauncy Mathias—Guard—'20

Yes that long, lean, lank fellow is "Claney." Although a first year man, he proved himself a good guard and a sure tackler. He should develop into a strong player next year.

Henry Keplinger—Half Back—'21

"Bill" as he is known is the only Freshman on the team. He is very fast and especially good at receiving passes and going down under punts.

Jay Ohliger—Mgr.—'18

Jay never was very active in Athletics until this year, never-the-less he has proved to be one of the best managers N. P. H. S. has ever had. He has a business head on him as was shown by the trip to Massillon.

Letter Men

Capt., Earl Gross—Center and Forward—'19

"Little Monk" is as swift as a streak of lightning. When he shoots, the basket seems to be a magnet for the ball. He is also a very good Captain, and will lead the team a second year.

Carl Warner—Forward—'19

A splendid offensive player, who always gives his best. You could count on Warner to dig out the ball and feed it to a team mate. He will be sorely missed if he does not return to school next year.

Charles Moore—Forward—'19

"Chaly" is a clever player and a very good shot. He has the peculiar ability of pulling the ball out of the air with one hand and shoving it down through the basket. Keep up the good work next year.

John Harris—Guard & Center—'19

"Hube" has no equal for close guarding. He is also a great center. No matter how the scores stand he fights to a finish. At present he is working but we hope he may return next year.

Frank Freeman—Guard—'19

This is "Hank's" first year on the team, and he has proved to be a very good guard. Time and again his good defensive work has saved many a basket for the Red and Black.

Carl Geib—Forward—'20

"Gipy" as he is called is not so large, but what he lacks in weight he makes up in his hard aggressive playing. He is also a good shot and a valuable man at digging out the ball.

Alfred Burri—Guard—'18

Yes the fat man has the distinction of being the only Senior on the team. No man on the squad worked harder for the team than he. He will be missed next year.

Edward Torgler—Mgr.—'18

This is Eddie's first year in Philly Hi. As Manager of the team he rendered invaluable service. Always looking after the welfare of the players and the financial success of the season.

The false rumors and malicious stories constantly being circulated as facts, discrediting our high officials, the Red Cross, the care and conduct of our troops, the condition of our cantonments, etc., is GERMAN PROPAGANDA intended to create distrust and discontent among our people and to discourage those working for our country.

These stories are accepted as news and unfortunately are being given the widest circulation by patriotic Americans who do not realize that they are aiding our enemies.

The Espionage Act provides punishment for those who "convey any false reports or statements" concerning our government. Those who are fighting for us deserve the fullest measure of our loyalty and support, both in word and deed.

We have resolved to close our ears to all such stories and so discourage their circulation. Will you do the same?

SAVE to Buy Liberty Bonds and Thrift Stamps

SEVEN REASONS FOR SAVING

- SAVE for your country's sake, because it is now spending millions a day, and must find most of the money out of savings.
- SAVE for your own sake, because work and wages are plentiful and, while prices are high now, a dollar will buy more after the war.
- SAVE because, when you spend, you make other people work for you, and the work of every one is needed now to win the war.
- SAVE because, by saving, you make things cheaper for every one, especially for those who are poorer than you.
- SAVE because, by going without, you relieve the strain on ships, docks, and railways, and make transport cheaper and quicker.
- SAVE because, by saving, you set an example that makes it easier for the next man to save. A saving nation is an earning nation.
- SAVE because every time you save you help twice, first when you don't spend and again when you lend to the Nation.

Appreciation

So far nothing has been said of those who have helped to make this publication of "The Delphian" a success, therefore we wish to take this opportunity to express our gratitude to the following:

The Senior Class, who under the leadership of Raymond Seibold and Florence Specht, sold the largest number of copies.

Mr. S. H. Green, whose skillful use of the camera is responsible for the fine photographs contained herein.

The Northern Engraving Co., who were prompt in making and returning the cuts used in printing the pictures.

The Hammond & Hurst Co., who offered good suggestions for the makeup of the book and were prompt and accurate in their printing.

The Business Men of our community who have made the book possible through their financial aid in advertising.
